The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, JULY 16TH, 1870.

The extraordinary line of conduct which was adopted by Mr. J. A. T. Meadows, of Tien-sin, who occupies the position of Consul for the United States, for Denmark and Holland at that port, in connection with the recent disturbances, calls attention to a matter which has often been the subject of comment, namely, the propriety of private individuals being appointed to act as Consuls in a country where the duties of those officials are, in consequence of the exterritorial jurisdiction, of so much importance.

It is asserted, upon very good authority, that Mr. Meadows, not only showed no anxiety to join in the steps necessary to bring light to the full extent the culpability of the Chinese with regard to the terrible massacre, but that he manifested a positive aversion to so doing, especially when it was necessary to identify the various bodies which had been sent in, one of which was that of the lamented French Consul, which CHENG-HOW had stated had been under his charge since the outbreak, and which therefore distinctly convicted that official of having made a gross misstatement with regard to a material part of his story. On this point Mr. Meadows it seems, showed a positive reluctance to perform the duty which as Consul he was bound to fulfil; and this circumstance evidently made a very great impression upon many at the time, it being the subject of special and very marked notice by the correspondent of the evening paper in Shanghai.

It is not at all improbable that any shortcomings on the part of Mr. Meadows may have attracted more attention than they would on that of any one else—even of a mercenary Consul—from the very peculiar position which he occupies. At the time the Consuls of the various nations which he represents were conferred upon him, he was doing business as a merchant; but he subsequently became bankrupt, and took employment under the Chinese officials as Superintendent or Manager of some Powder Mills, at it, it is stated, a salary of something like £2,000 a year. It may be fairly urged that there are very good objections against even ordinary mercenary men holding the position of Consul as any of the Treaty powers, but a man being in the employ of the Chinese officials ought surely to be considered a conclusive reason for his not acting as a Consul for any foreign nation. It is quite possible that Mr. J. A. T. Meadows is far superior to the average of men, and is no doubt above any paltry considerations of interest. But as applied to ordinary individuals—and it is only with reference to average people that general rules can be established—it is certainly a very bad principle that an official should be subjected to such temptation. A self-seeking and grasping man, who placed his personal comfort and advantage above every other consideration—and there are many such people in the world—would be certain to neglect his public duties in favour of his private wishes. Being retained as representative of half-a-dozen antagonistic interests, he would be very likely to stand up for the one which paid best, and in consequence be found neglecting the other duties, however sacred they might be. But there is a further hearing of this subject, which is perhaps the most important, and that which applies most directly to the case under notice. The person placed in this exceptional position might be, as no doubt Mr.
J. A. T. Meadows is, a man of no mean upright and conscientious disposition. His views and his interests might run in exactly the same direction; and, in this case, by acting conscientiously up to the end, he would be able to do down by the general public a merely consulting official. Unhappily people would in consequence say that his rights and his private interests were in advance of his public duties, and that he was not doing his duty. The most temperate and thoughtful mind, would not be able to deny that, however careful a person may be to guard against becoming unduly biased, yet is almost impossible to avoid being very greatly influenced by the people who employ him, and with whom he is daily intercourse. Undersuch circumstances which, on the part of men clearly uninfluenced by any other desire than to do their duty, might be considered merely mistakes, an apt to be looked upon as a very different light, and the feeling provoked under some circumstances may be of the strongest kind.

Thus, it happened to Mr. Meadows, in connection with the question, whether he was able or otherwise to return to the city thoroughly after the massacre, people have not hesitated to express the very strongest opinions. The mandarin carefully arranged that Mr. Meadows should be able to walk through the city without molestation, having placed posted up in all directions saying he was coming, and was to be treated respectfully. Mr. Meadows went, was unmolested, and, on coming back, reported that everything was quiet. The Protestant Missionaries, however, who were thinking of going to visit their friends, had other information, which was to the effect that it was not safe for foreigners as yet to venture into the city.
Had they acted upon Mr. Meadows' advice, it is difficult to see what limit could be placed upon the evidence, which might have been heaped upon him, while the case would have been even more serious had any of the people belonging to the nationalities he represents gone into the city upon his recommendation, and as would very probably have been the case, have been attacked and perhaps murdered in consequence. It is almost impossible, for example, to conceive the indignation that would have been excited in the United States, had the life of an American citizen been lost in this manner. It is also clear that the fact of Mr. Meadows being able to go in safely would convey a very strong impression as to the state of affairs if and forth in a despatch, as there can scarcely be a doubt that the special protection afforded to him resulted from his connection with the officials. In addition, however, to all this would be the fact that Mr. Meadows combines with his three Consular positions the position of correspondent of one of the northern newspapers, and that no doubt exists in the public mind that the gross misstatements which have been made in regard to the massacre at Tientsin are from his pen. This, of course, a further reason why private individuals should not be appointed Consuls.
The local officials attach great importance to the actions of the Consul, and it is certain that if they become aware, as there is very little doubt they will, that a Consul representing important nations is backing them through their difficulties, they will be much more disposed than otherwise to encourage outrage against such foreigners as are obnoxious to them. That a Consul for such a nation as the United States should be in Chinese employ, is an anomaly of a very startling nature; and it can scarcely be believed that it will be continued after attention has been called to it. The present case is one where the evils of the system are so apparent, that it may be confidently hoped it will prove sufficient to put an end to any such error in future. It is not possible to appoint officials at all the ports, care at least should be taken that the persons who are chosen are not liable to be biased by the Mandarins, as it may at any time happen that the duty of a Consul will be to make investigations and charges that may be of most serious dement to the Chinese officials, and which may be the case in individual instances cannot be supposed that they can do this, when they are in the pay of the very men against whom they have to report.

HONGKONG HOTEL COMPANY.

The meeting of the Hotel Company which took place yesterday was entirely formal, the business of the day being the election of a committee and electing new officers. Messrs.
Lundin and Bellis, were re-elected Directors, and Messrs. Burton and Foss as Auditors.
The Chairman, Mr. Lundin, said that the predictions made by Mr. Pollard as to the improvement that would result in the business of the Hotel consequent on the additional machine having been made, and that the business being much increased, and all mail passengers likely that the operation of the new machine would result in more than £30,000 could be collected.

THE FUNERAL SERVICE IN HONOUR OF THE VICTIMS OF THE TIENTSIN MASSACRE.

Want of time prevented our giving more than a few words in yesterday's paper, with reference to the funeral service which was held at the Catholic Church in memory of the victims of the Tientsin Massacre. There were a very large number of people of all nations present, and the service was very impressive.
The Hon. the Colonial Secretary, the Hon.
Colonel Smith, Colonel Miles, a large number of officers, and many gentlemen were present.
The service was performed by the Rev. Father Raimond, Prefect Apostolic of the Catholic Mission, and a somewhat touching feature was presented by the Sisters from Ontario and the Indian Sisters singing a portion of the chants in their own language. The magnificent service was very impressive, and all were evidently much affected by the solemnity of the occasion.

The following is the substance of the eloquent address which was made by Father Raimond. He said, the present occasion was a day of mourning for the victims of the massacre. We were performing the funeral service of our friends, who had been the victims of a terrible crime. We had lost a large number of our friends, and we were mourning for them. We were mourning for the victims of the massacre, and we were mourning for the souls of the dead. We were mourning for the souls of the dead, and we were mourning for the souls of the living.
We were mourning for the souls of the dead, and we were mourning for the souls of the living. We were mourning for the souls of the dead, and we were mourning for the souls of

we were mourning for the souls of the living.
We were mourning for the souls of the dead,
living. We were mourning for the souls of the
